[REDACTED]

1. In February 1952, Chinese Communist army units in Kwangsi responsible for the defense of the Kwangsi-Indochina border<sup>1</sup> began working on the 1952 spring farming program at places where they were stationed. They had completed their 1951 winter production campaign and their highway construction project in the border area.
2. The Kwangsi Military District arranged for its Supply and Service Command to assist in this program by providing the units with three agricultural implement manufacturing plants (sic), 500 piculs of seed grain, 50 piculs of seed cotton, 100 tons of fertilizer, and 200 head of cattle.
